This study demonstrates a way of extending the use of a hard-soft hydrogel in drug delivery systems. Injectable hard-soft gels (HSGs) are created from a hydrogel made of N-isopropylacrylamide

(NIPAAm), a semicrystalline polymer, and a low-molecular-weight copolymer of NIPAAm and methyl acrylate (MAA). The polymers are dissolved in dioxane/tetrahydrofuran (THF), mixed, and dialyzed against water. The concentration of NIPAAm in the NIPAAm/MAA HSG increases with increasing dialysis time and reaches a plateau corresponding to the end of the polymerization reaction. The in vitro release of 10 different compounds is shown to be significantly different from that of an NIPAAm hard gel. Drug release from HSGs is of a sustained pattern in water for more than 30 days. This process is temperature independent. The HSG form of the polymer was also successfully used to encapsulate biocompatible pigments. The swelling behavior of the HSG and its release in water is also discussed.Q: How to add radiobuttons to a form from a list of names and values? I have a list of names (textboxes) and values that I want to use to populate radio buttons on a form. The 2d92ce491b
