It's just a matter of getting them in the game. The Redskins have lost four of five, and Gruden and the staff can't find a solution for them. "For a guy like Dwayne (Haskins), for Dwayne, he's doing really, really good," Gruden said, according to Pro Football Talk. "For (Kirk) Cousins, for Kirk, he's fine, he's getting back in there, and for Colt (McCoy), Colt, it's just getting back in there." Cousins, 35, was a hot topic of conversation leading up to the season. He was drafted No. 10 overall in the 2014 draft, but has been out of the league since 2016 when he was released by the Dallas Cowboys. He signed with the Minnesota Vikings in 2017, but then suffered a knee injury that required arthroscopic surgery and eventually ended his season. He then signed with the Redskins last offseason, but his contract was cut by the team. He has since signed with the Cleveland Browns, but the Redskins are on the hook for $20 million on the $28 million he made in 2018. Cousins has a 101.9 passer rating with 2,317 yards, 22 touchdowns and seven interceptions through the first six games. He has started all six games and started four consecutively. McCoy, 30, was coming off a season in which he tore his ACL and MCL in Week 10, according to the Washington Post, and posted a passer rating of 65.9. He did not play the first six weeks of the 2018 season, but returned in Week 7. He has a 102.9 rating with 2,331 yards, 20 touchdowns and 12 interceptions through the first six games. He has started all six games and started five consecutively. Haskins, 22, was the No. 8 overall pick in last year's draft. He played at Ohio State and has a passer rating of 95.6. He threw for 4,408 yards with 40 touchdowns and 11 interceptions. The first-team offense was plagued by turnovers in Week 2 ♦
