websites. After the success of Pulp Fiction, American director Quentin Tarantino released this film in October 1999. It depicts the experiences of a young man who is digging a tunnel under the roof of his house in Boulder, Colorado. Soon, the house is condemned and a part of the ceiling collapses on him. He is trapped and has no way to get out. However, he finds out about a cave near by, and starts thinking about his way to get out. He finds out that the caving world is closely associated with some drug dealers, so he calls them, but they refuse to help him. So, he contacts the local police. However, they are not much help. Then he notices a dog eating out of his backpack. The dog was also stuck in the rubble. The animal's owner calls a man who owns a small company. After they leave the house, the dog is taken care of. Then the man tries to get out of the house. At the same time, he tries to explain the situation to the police. Soon, the police and the company owner come to the house. They find a length of rope, which is the only way to get out of the house. The owner tries to use the rope, but he fails. Then the police try to save the owner. They can't save the owner. The owner dies in his arms. As he is a friend, the dog attacks the police officer and bites him. Then he finds out that the rope is around his neck and he can't get it off, so he dies. As he is a friend, the dog then starts to eat the body of the police officer.
