A DLL (Dynamic Link Library) is a program module which can be loaded from disk into the main memory, i.e. RAM (Random Access Memory). An EXE (Executable) is a program module which is either loaded by an executable program or can be started directly by the operating system. It is like a 1/0. For example, If your dll file is called "dll1.dll" and resides in the same folder where your exe file is, you can open "dll1.dll" file with notepad and you will get a DLL file which will be nothing but a simple text. An example of a DLL file is kerneltest.dll which comes with the Windows operating system. To avoid confusion, it is always recommended to store your DLLs in the System32 folder which resides in the root directory of the system, e.g.

C:\Windows\System32. Now the short answer is that the EXE is the executable application which runs on the Operating System (Windows), and the DLL is the library or a collection of programs which the EXE program can use to run properly. If you want to read more about DLL, here is a good link. For the last two months, we've been tracking the deployment of Windows 8.1. And we've seen some pretty cool changes to the desktop, especially the ability to minimize apps and keep track of open windows. It turns out Microsoft is working on a tool that will allow even easier multitasking. It's called Microsoft Task Manager. We may never see this on Windows, but it's a

FEMA says it's making progress in providing temporary housing for Puerto Rico residents The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is making progress in providing temporary housing for Puerto Rico residents affected by Hurricane Maria, the agency said in a statement on Tuesday. "FEMA is committed to continuing to address the needs of the people of Puerto Rico, and we are currently making significant progress in providing housing for those impacted by Hurricane

Maria,” the agency said. FEMA deployed mobile storage and distribution units (MSDUs) at 13 distribution sites across Puerto Rico as of Monday, with 848 MSDUs and 5,704 truckloads of supplies to support emergency shelters. "As of today, we have 5,704 truckloads of supplies in 13 distribution sites in Puerto Rico to support emergency shelters, with 848 MSDUs in 13 distribution sites in Puerto Rico,” said FEMA Deputy Administrator for Mission Support Michael Byrne. “With the help of our partners, we will continue to distribute all the supplies needed to support Puerto Rico's recovery." FEMA also began installing water delivery systems at shelters throughout Puerto Rico as of Tuesday. To date, more than 1.5 million tons of food and water have been delivered to Puerto Rico since Hurricane Maria, FEMA said. “Since Hurricanes Irma and Maria, FEMA
