_Primitives_ are the basic tools that every Photoshop user must know. They include the Rectangular Marquee Tool, Elliptical Marquee Tool, Magic Wand Tool, and Lasso Tool. Of these, the Lasso Tool is often used in creating selections. Photoshop has more than 20 different tools to manipulate an image. The toolbox that you open by clicking a tool icon at the top of the Photoshop window is called the toolbox. It contains a collection of tools that have been grouped according to their purpose, making it easy to use the right tool for the job. The cursor or selection tool is your first tool of choice. It can be used to select the area of an image or text or to move an object or element in the image. The Lasso Tool, a fairly recent addition to the toolbox, is used to make selections and to click a point to get exact coordinates. It's easy to use when drawing, but when editing a complex image, such as repairing a photograph, where you must backtrack to correct a previous wrong selection, the Lasso Tool often leads to very complex and tedious work. The Brush Tool is used to paint an image or text, or to apply color, pattern, or other effects to an area of an image. Brush controls such as pressure, size, and so on, can be changed in the Options bar at the top of the screen. The Eraser Tool can be used to remove objects or text from an image. It has a multitude of variations, such as a Magic Eraser, which erases only in the visible spectrum. The Text Tool enables you to add and edit text. It is the default tool for adding text to an image. Text tools such as Type Tool, Font Dialog, Size Tool, and Align Tool are all optional tools. These allow you to edit and insert text in a variety of ways. They also enable you to set text options like font, size, font style, character spacing, alignment, and so on. The Airbrush Tool lets you paint with a brush or line with another object, for example, to create a watercolor effect. You can adjust the amount of color or the diameter of your brush stroke. The Gradient Tool is used to create colors and effects on a transparent layer by changing the color specified in an RGB color box on the layer. You can create new colors by dragging the tool over a color swatch in the swatch palette
