I have an android app ready and I want to release it on the market. Amazon appstore doesn't allow localization and I'm looking for a better option for localization. What is the best option in this case? I don't want to risk a rejection. A: Both market and app store are pretty similar, and both are good to sell the app. The only difference is you pay a fee on the app store, whereas you don't on the market. If you plan to translate it for different languages too? If so, the amazon app store is a much better option since it's free for any language. Since you said that you're thinking about localizing the app, the best would be to release the app on both market and app store, and then manually translate it for local markets later.
